Tri-C business programs launch graduates on the path to success

For students interested in a business career, Tri-C's Associate of Applied Business degree in business management offers the foundation for a variety of career paths. The program includes concentrations in Accounting, Business Technology, Human Resource Management, International Business, Marketing, Purchasing and Supply Management and Small Business Management. Assistant Professor of Business Management Andrew Bajda said Small Business Management students "gain the knowledge of not only running and operating a small business, but also the global impact of business, understanding how to manage people, understanding accounting - everything you need to be successful as a business owner."

The business program provides workshops throughout the year along with helpful services and support through the student-led ThRive organization. When students complete the program their business idea becomes a reality and they are encouraged to stay connected to Tri-C for guidance and networking opportunities after graduation. "We've developed a culture here over the past few years that is geared toward student success," said Prof. Bajda. "We want students to know that they can always come back to Tri-C and they'll always be a part of the Tri-C business community."
