$10 Million Gift Awarded to Cuyahoga Community College Foundation to Establish the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Humanities Center

The Cuyahoga Community College Foundation and the College are extremely grateful for the generous support of Mr. Morton Mandel, the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations with their $10 million gift announced on March 12, 2015. Their gift – the largest ever received by the Foundation – will allow Cuyahoga Community College to enhance the study of humanities and the liberal arts to educate passionate leaders who will invest their skills, knowledge and wisdom to lead our community into a stronger economic and social future.

A permanent endowment established within the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation will provide support in perpetuity for the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Humanities Center, a Chair for Humanities/Dean, and a Scholars Academy.

“Over the last 13 years, our Foundation has supported Tri-C because we believe in the College’s mission. We are pleased to join President Alex Johnson and the Tri-C leadership team in producing enthusiastic graduates for our community,” said Mr. Morton Mandel, Chairman of the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation.

As Chairperson of the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation, it gives me great pleasure to express gratitude, on behalf of our entire Board of Directors, for the transformational gift from the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations. This investment in Tri-C will enhance our community and our region for current and future generations of students.

Through the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation, social leadership initiatives have been funded throughout the world. In partnership with Cuyahoga Community College, we now have the opportunity to leave a lasting legacy of educating and training the next generation of civic leaders in our own community. With over 85% of Tri-C students remaining in the Greater Cleveland area after graduation, this renewed focus on the humanities and creating engaging student experiences will have a direct impact on those in our workforce. We are so thankful for the generosity of Mr. Morton Mandel, the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations for their dedication to our students.

Partnership Will Establish Center of Excellence in Humanities at Tri-C

This is an exciting time for Cuyahoga Community College (Tri-C®) and the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation. The generous support of the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations is helping the College to establish a center of excellence in the humanities and liberal arts.

Tri-C values liberal arts education and scholarly engagement in the humanities. Through the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Scholars Academy, Tri-C will provide a holistic approach for developing highly informed, well-rounded scholars who are prepared to transition into public and private four-year institutions and who have the knowledge and wisdom to become civically and ethically responsible citizens and future leaders. It will welcome students who demonstrate academic achievement, community service and a commitment to developing or enhancing their leadership skills.

The Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Humanities Center will be a testament to excellence in leadership development and engagement. It will afford Tri-C students opportunities to broaden their leadership and educational experience in the humanities and create an educational ecosystem that supports service learning, completion of education and preparation for the workforce. As we continue to build a legacy for the future at Cuyahoga Community College, the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation will provide an investment that offers the greatest return – an investment in people, which provides a stronger community.

Celebrating 25 Years of Service: Nadine Feighan Wellness Fund Established with Tri-C Foundation

In recognition of Mrs. Feighan’s 25 years of service as a member of the Cuyahoga Community College Board of Trustees and in appreciation for her generous contributions to scholarships for students, the Tri-C Foundation has established the Nadine Feighan Wellness Fund. She has also been named the Board’s first Trustee Emeritus.
the Foundation. “Our Foundation is committed to leadership and the advancement of higher education and this grant furthers that mission.”

The Cuyahoga Community College Board of Trustees approved the name change from the current Liberal Arts building at the Eastern Campus to the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Humanities Center at its meeting on March 12. The renovation of space in the Liberal Arts building will provide a technology-rich environment for individual and collaborative learning, including teleconferencing to support lectures and research projects, presentation space for students and project teams and dedicated classroom space and areas for conferences, quiet study and individual learning.

The Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Humanities Center will bring together faculty, students and community members to participate in classes, seminars, lectures and special events contributing to civic engagement. The advisory committee will provide feedback to faculty and students on their community service and experiential learning activities.

Tri-C Trustee, Ms. Rachel Von Hendrix summarized the enthusiasm and impact of this gift, stating, “This is amazing for our students. I’m jealous. I wish I had had the opportunity to use the Center and engage in the Scholars Academy when I was a Tri-C student!”

At least 200 high-performing students will be selected annually as Mandel Scholars to participate in the Scholars Academy and benefit from Foundation scholarships. This will provide a holistic experience for high-performing students that enriches the study of the humanities through innovative activities.

“Cuyahoga Community College will now place an even stronger emphasis on liberal arts education. Scholarly engagement in the humanities is indispensable for producing well-rounded students who are prepared to transition into public and private four-year institutions and become informed citizens and community and national leaders,” Tri-C President Alex Johnson said.

More than 4,000 students are expected to be impacted by the Center annually. The College will recruit high-performing liberal arts students to participate in this “community of excellence.” The Center will assist students in maximizing their transfer potential.

“The Cuyahoga Community College Foundation is so very appreciative of its long-term partnership with the Mandel Foundation, which has supported the College’s Mandel Leadership Development Program for faculty and staff for many years. This exciting new gift will provide transformative opportunities for Tri-C students. The generosity of Mr. Morton Mandel, the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations will touch the lives of students and our community for generations to come,” said Ms. Gloria J. Moosmann, Vice President, Development and Tri-C Foundation.

A formal dedication of the Center will be held in the fall.
Donors’ Generosity Provides Experiences for Hospitality Students

Gail A. Bowen, a Director at Richard. Bowen + Associates, Inc., has been a dedicated member of the Tri-C Foundation Board of Directors since 2009, serving in various capacities, including the Development Committee. The Tri-C Foundation is very appreciative of the Richard L. Bowen + Associates Endowed Scholarship Fund. This scholarship continues to help students access higher education to complete degree programs and earn career credentials. Her motivation to be intensely committed to the Foundation is the opportunity it gives her to support student scholarships and showcase various College programs, such as the Hospitality Management program. For the last three years, Richard L. Bowen + Associates Inc. has supported the participation of Tri-C at the annual Shaker Heights Garlic Festival in September. Gail has also assisted Chef Brandt Evans, Executive Director of the Tri-C Hospitality Management Center, during cooking demonstrations at the Festival. Through the support of Richard L. Bowen + Associates Inc., the College has had a booth at the Festival, increasing visibility in the community and creating awareness of the accessibility and broad scope of Tri-C educational programs, including the Hospitality Management program.

Bill and Joyce Litzler are community leaders who share a passion of enriching the lives of Tri-C students in a number of ways. The Litzlers have an endowed scholarship fund through the Tri-C Foundation that provides scholarships for graduates of the Seeds of Literacy program and other GED graduates attending Tri-C. The Litzlers provide support for students from Tri-C’s Hospitality Management Program to participate in the Greater Cleveland Food Bank’s Market at the Foodbank event, where they work alongside notable chefs of our community. This event is a great opportunity for the students to gain visibility in the vibrant culinary world of Northeast Ohio. The Litzlers also support the community education initiatives of Tri-C JazzFest Cleveland.

The support of the Tri-C Foundation Board of Directors is critical in providing the support and experiences which allow students to grow within their educational journey. The Tri-C Foundation is very grateful for the generous commitment of our many friends who are engaged with Tri-C students to help them prosper academically and professionally.
Classical Piano Recital Series Features International Musicians

On Sunday, March 22, eighteen-year-old Mr. Adi Neuhaus made his debut performance in Tri-C’s Classical Piano Recital Series at the Gartner Auditorium, Cleveland Museum of Art, closing out the 2014-15 Cuyahoga Community College Classical Piano Recital Series to a standing ovation. The concert was presented with the support of the Jewish Federation’s Cleveland-Israel Arts Connection.

The grandson and great-grandson of legendary Russian pianists Heinrich and Stanislav Neuhaus, the Israeli-born musician performed to an audience of several hundred enthusiastic concert-goers, delighting them with his exceptional performance. Mr. Neuhaus began playing piano at the age of three, and currently studies at the Jerusalem Academy of Music and Dance. He was a first-prize winner at the “Piano Forever” competition in Ashdod (2013), the Voice of Music “Young Artists Competition” in Jerusalem (2012), and the International Scriabin Competition in Moscow (2010).

Under the direction of Ms. Emanuela Friscioni, Tri-C’s Classical Piano Recital Series is in its eighth season, this year featuring three young rising stars who have already garnered international acclaim. Other performers included Ms. Beatrice Rana and child prodigy, Mr. Gavin George, all representing the future of classical piano.

The Cuyahoga Community College Foundation appreciates the support of the Classical Piano Series sponsor, the Farny R. Wurlitzer Foundation and Performance sponsors of the Neuhaus concert: The Jewish Federation of Cleveland and Steinway Piano Gallery, along with Benefactors: The Conway Family Foundation, The William O. and Gertrude Lewis Frohring Foundation and Mr. Robert Hexter; and Friends: Mr. Robert D. Conrad, Mr. Edward Gabelman and Ms. Gloria Hanson. Thank you for helping to make the Tri-C Classical Piano Recital Series a reality.

Tri-C’s Construction Programs: Building a Brighter Future

Students enrolled in Tri-C’s Associate of Applied Science Degree in Construction Engineering Technology or Apprentice programs are dedicated to working hard and building a better life for themselves and their families. By obtaining a degree or apprenticing in the skilled trades, students establish a higher quality of life for themselves and their families. In turn, these families contribute to the economic prosperity of Northeast Ohio.

Recognizing the need for qualified and skilled labor in the construction trades, industry leaders and community partners including Turner Construction Company, Ozanne Construction Company and Van Auken Akins Architects, LLC, created the Construction Pre-Apprenticeship Training Program Scholarship Fund of the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation. The Pre-Apprenticeship program at Tri-C offers students an opportunity to complete hands-on projects under the supervision of experienced craft workers from the construction trades. This scholarship provides funding for qualified students who have demonstrated the desire to become a part of the construction workforce. Through this scholarship, regional talent will be recruited into the construction industry pipeline.

Investments in the Construction Pre-Apprenticeship Training Program Scholarship Fund will enable Tri-C students to secure world-class training and help them build a better future.
Ohio Department of Education Supports Adult Diploma Program

Cuyahoga Community College is one of five pilot sites selected across the state of Ohio to conduct the Adult Diploma Program. Ohio Department of Education has awarded $450,000 to the College for a six-month planning grant. This initiative will assist adults in obtaining their high school diploma and an industry credential or certificate. The pilot project will build the College’s capacity to provide services and training to this unique population so that they can successfully enter Ohio’s in-demand career fields. The program was created by the state of Ohio to identify and serve the 1.1 million Ohio citizens age 22 and older who have not earned a high school diploma or equivalent.

How does this differ from the College’s ABLE and GED Programs?

Adult Basic and Literacy Education (ABLE) provides free services for individuals who need assistance acquiring the skills to be successful in postsecondary education and training, and employment. Tri-C’s ABLE program provides basic math, reading, writing and literacy skills to 3,100 people annually.

Through the College’s General Educational Development (GED) services, 100 participants earn the GED annually. The GED test gives students who left high school before graduating an opportunity to earn a High School Equivalence Diploma. The GED test covers four subjects: reasoning through language, mathematical reasoning, science and social studies. A GED can be used to pursue career training or a college degree.

Candidates for the Adult Diploma Program are those who did not complete high school and are highly motivated to enter career pathways for in-demand jobs.

Participants will earn a high school diploma through participation in a competency-based learning program, culminating in the demonstration of mastery of skills to enter a career pathway to industries such as health careers, manufacturing and culinary arts.

What can a participant expect after completing the Adult Diploma Program?

With attainment of a high school diploma and industry credentials, job placement within the career pathway is a priority for Cuyahoga Community College and its partners in the Adult Diploma Program. In addition, participants are well situated to continue on an academic pathway to obtain additional credentials or an associate degree to move them further along in their career pathway.

Services for members of the pilot program are underway. For more information, please call 216-987-0244.

EMPLOYEE DONOR SPOTLIGHT

Pat Patwardhan is an Associate Professor of Business at the Western Campus. He has been teaching full-time at Tri-C for 10 years and is the advisor to the Business Focus Club. He is currently pursuing a doctoral degree at the University of Toledo.

In his native India, Mr. Patwardhan worked as CEO and president for the Dale Carnegie Company/Center for Leadership and Management. He coached business leaders to be empowered, inspired, and more confident, and uses those same principles in his teaching at Tri-C. As a scholarship recipient himself, he has a lot of gratitude for the generosity of others. “I received a scholarship as a student and it changed my entire life. Giving back fits in with what I believe.”

The Cuyahoga Community College Foundation greatly appreciates the support of Mr. Pat Patwardhan and all of the faculty and staff who generously give back to support student success at Tri-C.
Generous Bequest from College Retiree Supports Tri-C Engineering Students

Alfred Penko believed in the value of a good education and the success that can be achieved from it. Mr. Penko was a professor of Mechanical Engineering at Cuyahoga Community College and a Professional Engineer for the state of Ohio. He dedicated over 30 years to Tri-C as a professor. His passion for education and making the world a better place was evident inside and outside of the classroom. He was dedicated to helping his students pursue their dreams of becoming an engineer.

Outside of the classroom Mr. Penko was very active in working to preserve our natural resources. He was fond of the outdoors, especially the Metroparks surrounding the Cleveland area. In 2012, he was named Conservationist of the Year for Northeast Ohio for his active efforts with the Friends of Big Creek.

A lifelong resident of Northeast Ohio, Mr. Penko was the son of a Cleveland tool and die maker and the oldest of three brothers. He graduated from Brecksville High School and earned a Bachelor of Science degree from the Ohio University College of Engineering. When he passed away in December 2013, his family contacted the Tri-C Foundation to share that Mr. Penko had made a commitment in his estate plans to help Tri-C students access and complete their education. As a result, the family of Mr. Alfred Penko has established the Alfred Penko Scholarship Fund in his memory to support students enrolled in Tri-C’s Engineering Technology Programs. His family members encourage the scholarship recipients to make the most of diverse educational opportunities and translate them into career, community and conservation efforts.

Through the Alfred Penko Scholarship Fund, Mr. Penko’s zeal for education, engineering and conservation will continue to thrive through the opportunities that are created for Tri-C’s students. The Cuyahoga Community College Foundation is very grateful to Alfred Penko and his family for this generous legacy commitment to benefit Tri-C’s students.

Students who wish to apply for the Alfred Penko Endowed Scholarship should complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) and indicate it be directed to Cuyahoga Community College. Students must also complete the Tri-C online scholarship application. Students are automatically considered for all qualifying scholarships.

Tri-C Chosen As Ohio Site to Pilot MDRC Project for Accelerated Study in Associate Programs

MDRC, a nonprofit, nonpartisan education and social policy research organization, has provided a multi-year grant to support Cuyahoga Community College’s participation in the Accelerated Study in Associate Programs (ASAP) Replication Project.

Through a partnership with the Ohio Board of Regents, MDRC, City University of New York and the Great Lakes Guaranty Corporation, Tri-C will serve as one of three ASAP replication sites in the state of Ohio. The ASAP is a nationally recognized model, created by the City University of New York Community Colleges, designed to significantly increase timely degree completion and graduation.

This is part of the pilot group for the College’s “Design in 3” program. The program includes incentivized full-time degree pathways, integrated and mandatory student support services, early engagement, first-year block scheduled courses, a consolidated course schedule, summer courses, and data collection and analysis for ongoing program management and evaluation.
Invest in People for the Greatest Return

During my 25 years serving on the Cuyahoga Community College Board of Trustees, I have had the extreme pleasure of watching the College grow into one of the top community colleges in the country. I am very proud that Tri-C remains the place where futures begin for so many members of our community.

Keeping tuition affordable has been a primary objective of mine during my terms, serving with many great colleagues on the College Board, the Tri-C Foundation Board and, of course, with three of the College’s four presidents.

Despite our efforts to keep the cost of education within the reach of Tri-C students, economic and personal challenges often prevent this from becoming reality. It is so disheartening to hear stories of students who are unable to remain in the classroom because they are struggling with other expenses of daily living, such as feeding their families and paying their utility bills. That is where the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation makes a critical difference to our students and to our community.

With the assistance of its generous partners, the Tri-C Foundation provides funding support for program development and enhancement and, most importantly, student scholarships. So very often even a small scholarship makes the difference in the life of a student. By providing assistance for tuition and books through scholarships so that students can complete their degrees, the Tri-C Foundation is making a difference in our community and our region. This is why I support the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation. I hope you will too, as we all work together to invest in people for a greater return for us all, now and in the future.

Kent H. Smith Community Charitable Trust Continues Support of Gap Scholarships

The Cuyahoga College College Foundation appreciates the long-term partnership of the Kent H. Smith Charitable Trust for the Gap Scholarship Fund. Their support, along with other generous donors, enables Tri-C students who have some but not all of the funding they need to begin or continue their education to remain in the classroom and complete their education. The Kent H. Smith Charitable Trust’s support for student scholarships has enabled highly motivated students to pursue postsecondary education, obtain college credentials, and contribute to the economic growth of Northeast Ohio.

The support of community partners such as the Kent H. Smith Charitable Trust enables more members of our community to enroll and complete degree and certificate programs as a pathway to quality jobs and rewarding careers. The access to higher education they provide is critically important in closing the gap between the advanced skills required by area employers and the abilities of our region’s workforce. Their support is making a difference in our community.
Alumna Dr. Natalie Bowersox Reflects on the Value of a Tri-C Education

As the oldest of four children and financing her higher education on her own, Dr. Natalie Bowersox knew that she would have to find a way to make college affordable if she wanted to continue her studies. During her senior year in high school a guidance counselor encouraged her to apply for a Cuyahoga Community College Foundation scholarship. She received the award, covering her tuition and books during her two years of study on Tri-C’s Western Campus.

After graduating with her Associate of Science degree in 1993 Bowersox went on to Baldwin-Wallace University. All of her Tri-C credits transferred and she earned her Bachelor of Science degree in Chemistry, allowing her to graduate on time and without debt, which enabled her to go on to medical school at the College of Medicine and Life Sciences at the University of Toledo. After completing her residency and internship at the Albany Medical Center in New York, Dr. Bowersox returned to Northeast Ohio as an Obstetrician/Gynecologist physician with the Cleveland Clinic, bringing her full circle; she was born in the Clinic’s Fairview Hospital and is now delivering babies there.

Looking back on her time as a student at Tri-C, Dr. Bowersox recalls that the professors were all top-notch and that she met some amazing people at the College. Her instructors were innovative and dedicated, willing to spend extra time with her outside of the classroom to make sure that she really understood what she was learning, which prepared her well for the Medical College Admissions Test (MCAT). Dr. Bowersox said the faculty understood why the students were there, what they were trying to accomplish and were sensitive to the fact that many of the students were balancing work and class schedules, which was much appreciated.

Dr. Bowersox is grateful for the educational foundation she received at Tri-C and believes in supporting current students in their educational pursuits.

“Tri-C truly allowed me to dream big and succeed. Tri-C showed me what I was capable of and gave me the tools to be successful, which is why I support the Tri-C Foundation scholarship funds.”

Community Partnerships Make Great Things Possible

Investing in people is the mission of the Cuyahoga Community College Foundation. It is what we do every day – securing funding support from generous donors to develop and enhance programs and augment scholarship funds – all of which play a critical role in advancing the economic impact of our community, one student at a time. Partnerships are at the very root of what we do and are what makes the mission of Cuyahoga Community College possible.

Throughout the years, the role of the community college has changed. Tri-C is no exception. Enrollment and visibility have grown. So too has the role of the community college in preparing well-rounded citizens for a productive future that benefits our entire society. The recent support from the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations is forging stronger pathways for Tri-C in the liberal arts and humanities. This gift will enhance the engagement of students and faculty in this area, creating a holistic, unique environment to advance intellectual study and the matriculation of graduates with the knowledge and wisdom to become civically and ethically responsible citizens and future leaders.

The partnership and engagement of our entire community, across all of our constituencies including alumni, friends, corporations, organizations and foundations, will enable Tri-C to continue to produce, in the words of Mr. Morton Mandel, “people with the values, ability and passion to change the world.”

The Cuyahoga Community College Foundation is extremely grateful to Mr. Morton Mandel, the Jack, Joseph and Morton Mandel Foundation and the Mandel Supporting Foundations for their investment in Cuyahoga Community College. This truly is an investment in people – an investment that will pay back tremendous dividends for our entire community and our region. Their belief in our mission has a tremendous impact on Tri-C students.

The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation Cleveland Humanities Collaborative Supports Humanities at Tri-C

A generous grant from The Andrew W. Mellon Foundation is supporting a partnership between Cuyahoga Community College (Tri-C) and Case Western Reserve University (CWRU) to develop a humanities pipeline, creating an effective pathway for Tri-C students to continue their liberal arts education with a baccalaureate degree in humanities at CWRU.

The project, known as the Cleveland Humanities Collaborative, will support Tri-C students’ participation in summer bridge programs, faculty mentors from both institutions, research opportunities, social activities, joint workshops and discussions with guest speakers sponsored by the Baker-Nord Center for Humanities on the CWRU campus, and the development of articulation agreements between the institutions to ease the transfer process. Over the four-year term of the grant it is anticipated that three cohorts of 15 Tri-C students will participate in the program. Together these approaches will foster an active community of engaged, humanities-focused scholars.
