John Rodriguez

After graduating from Syracuse University, John Rodriguez strode into the world — his Bachelor of Fine Arts degree proudly in hand — only to discover that the American job market holds theater majors in shockingly low regard. Undaunted, he spent the next 15 years as a stage and voice actor and writer. While his efforts earned him an A in stick-to-it-iveness, his bank account was closer to a D-minus.

Rodriguez returned to school in summer 2021, enrolling full time at Tri-C without knowing exactly where he hoped to land. One year, 60 credit hours and many academic counseling sessions later, he is preparing to graduate summa cum laude with two degrees: an Associate of Arts and an Associate of Science. This fall, he'll join the psychology and pre-med track at The Ohio State University, with the ultimate goal of becoming a psychiatrist.

They don't call them "starving artists" for nothing. Fortunately, it's never too late to feed your mind.

Tri-C gave Rodriguez a fresh start in life, for which he will be eternally grateful.

Academic Regalia

Traditional academic regalia originated in 12th-century England with the robes worn by the monks who administered Oxford University. In the United States, the use of academic regalia dates to 1754 and the founding of Columbia University. The standards for academic regalia styles and colors were established in 1895 and are maintained by a commission of college and university officials.

As seen today, regalia typically consists of three items: the robe, the mortarboard and the hood. The robe is usually black, although institutions may sanction the use of other colors. The style of the robe changes for associate, baccalaureate, master's and doctoral degrees. The width and style of the sleeve and the length of the hood increase with each advanced degree. The mortarboard is adorned with a tassel; black for those who have earned an associate, bachelor's or master's degree, and gold for those who have earned a doctorate or are governing officers of an educational institution. In the hood, the color of the velvet border identifies the academic field in which the degree was earned, and the colors of the lining are the official colors of the institution that granted the degree.

Students who have achieved academic honors wear a gold honors cord. The honors cord indicates that the graduate has a cumulative grade point average of 3.5 or greater. U.S. military veterans wear a red, white and blue medallion.

Phi Theta Kappa, founded in 1918, is recognized as the official honor society for community colleges by the American Association of Community Colleges. Members of Phi Theta Kappa may wear the Society's Honors Stole, made of gold satin and embroidered with the Society's Greek letters and seal.

The Legend of the Stole of Gratitude

Every graduate has had a special person who, through moral or financial support, made a big difference in his or her life. The Stole of Gratitude offers an opportunity to say "Thanks for making it possible for me to succeed!"

After the ceremony, the new graduate presents the Stole of Gratitude to someone who provided extraordinary support or who has helped with wisdom, words of encouragement, or financial assistance.

Immediately after graduation, the graduate may take the stole from around his/her neck and place it around the neck of the recipient. If more than one stole is worn during commencement, they symbolize multiple persons who will receive Stoles of Gratitude.

Presenters often write a few words of love and appreciation on the back of the stole using a permanent, fine-tipped marker. Friends and family of the graduate may autograph the front or back. The Stole of Gratitude is a lasting symbol of love, appreciation and academic accomplishment.

Congratulations, graduates!
