PASSION FOR THE PEOPLE

Pandora Schaal has always enjoyed working with people. In fact, it's her dream to be a teacher. The Spokane, Washington, resident was working for Pizza Hut when she discovered the franchise's educational partnership with Excelsior. It was then that she decided to pursue a bachelor's degree to move toward her goal of teaching. Read more

Is a Career in Clinical Nutrition Right for You?

Have you ever tried searching the internet for healthy ideas and a myriad of different answers pop up? Carbs are bad for you. Red meat will make you sick. Sweets will make you gain weight. A clinical nutritionist works with people to determine the best nutritional route specific to each individual. They can help figure out if eating the egg is right for you, or if an all-vegetarian diet will get you to meet your nutritional goals. Read more

Why a Nuclear Engineering Degree is Perfect for Navy Veterans

When Jeffery Hoffman retired after 26 years in the U.S. Navy, he wanted to stay in the same job he had at the Naval Nuclear Laboratory in New York and earn a college degree. Hoffman cleared the first hurdle by keeping his engineering technologist job at the lab in a civilian role. He cleared the second by earning a Bachelor of Science in Nuclear Engineering Technology online from Excelsior College. Read more
