A NOTE FROM THE DIRECTOR

The weather is warm, the birds are chirping, and there are still students on campus. Summer terms are a unique opportunity to take shortened classes and experiment with new learning formats.

After all, summer is a chance for experimentation; students taking on summer jobs or travelling to new places. I encourage you all to make the most of your summer semester, no matter your circumstances. Try a new class, a new volunteer opportunity — or just a new summer cuisine!

We are looking forward to seeing you on campus soon!

KIMBERLY LANE

Greetings! I'm Kimberly Lane, the new student liaison for Veteran and Military-Connected Services at Tri-C. It is a pleasure and an honor to serve veterans who have served our country. This is my dream job, and I am grateful to God every day. My interests include spending time with my daughter, my close friends and the cutest puppy ever born. WRITING REFLECTION

Do you often see tip jars or touchscreen systems for tipping at businesses in your neighborhood? Which ones?

Do you tip whenever you're asked or prompted to? How much does social pressure influence your tipping practices?

Read this article from The New York Times (subscription may be required) and share your thoughts with me at jeremy.wong@tri-c.edu to see your opinion in a future newsletter!

- What's your reaction to the article? Do you feel that tipping culture has gone "out of control"? Why or why not?
- How do you decide when to tip and how much? Did your tipping practices change during the pandemic? Explain.
- Do you think there are situations where tipping should not be expected or allowed? Why or why not?
- Do you or anyone you know rely on tips for income? How do you feel about changing expectations around tipping?
- The article mentions a college student who describes feeling social pressure to tip. Have you ever felt this way? How do you navigate tipping as a young person and/or without the income of a full-time job?

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE LAST GROUND TROOPS TO LEAVE SOUTH VIETNAM

The United States first established a presence in South Vietnam in 1950 while aiding the French during the First Indochina War.

In 1959, the Communist-aided Viet Cong began a series of attacks from the north. As the aggression escalated, U.S. involvement increased — with the number of troops growing from just under 1,000 in 1959 to 23,000 in 1964.

Throughout the 1960s and early 1970s, the controversial conflict consumed the United States. The military draft was reinstated, with a mandatory service period of six months. In Vietnam, guerilla warfare and jungle battlegrounds made for horrifying landscapes with detrimental psychological repercussions that veterans of the conflict continue to experience.

As the war raged on, the United States sought to withdraw its troops and let the South Vietnamese army finish the job themselves. A process referred to as “Vietnamization” led the U.S. Army to become less and less involved in combat as the South Vietnamese forces gradually modernized and began to take over the war effort.

On Aug. 11, 1972, the 3rd Battalion, 21st Infantry withdrew from their station guarding an airbase. The only remaining U.S. forces — advisors, airmen and support troops — departed four days later.
